AS VIEWED IN ITALY.

Special to the Gazette. Loxpon, April 4 .- As was cabled three Loxbox, April 4.—As was caused three days ago, the American difficulty with Italy is viewed differently by the government and by the people. The popular sentiment is decidedly hostile to the United States, while the cabluet is anxious to get out of while the cabinet is anxious to get out of the matter as quietly as possible without giving a handle to its political adversaries.
King Humbert and the premier are said to be both convinced that there is no race

THE RETURN OF THE KAISER to Berin without seeing Prince Bismarck is attributed to the confidence inspired in the kaiser by the warmth of the reception the casser by the warmin of the reception at Lubeck. His visit to the old Hause city was, next to Bismarck's birthday memorable, the event of the week in Germany. The Lubeckers spared no effort to show their loyalty, not to the emperor, but to the empire to which, like all the former Hause towns, they are treated to the control of the strongly attached, because it allows them possession of equal autonomy with the more important states in which they would otherwise have been swallowed up.

The Thades Photession.

The feature which excited the deepest interest was the trades procession. As each trade appeared with its banner and greeted the emperor, he returned the salute as conflictly as he had that of the military, and he made particular inquiries from the burgomaster president as to the condition and history of each to the condition and history of each particular trade.

particular trade.

The kalser visited various places of interest in the old city, and was shown the ancient armor which the men of Lubeck were when they defended their city against the victorious Swedes. The Kalser said he hoped to see the day when Lubeck and all Hanse towns would again be great depots of European commerce, trading as successful with the most distant parts of the world as they once did in the narrow domain of mediaeval commerce. He said that he mediaeval commerce. He said that he would spare no labor on his part to build up the commercial interests of the empire, and also to create that which was indispensible for a prosperous commerce.

KING OTTO WANTS A WIFE.

A Munich dispatch says that the latest freak of the insane King Otto is that he wants a wife. He insists on making the round of European courts in order to make a selection. tion, and his attendants are at their wits ends what to do. Heretofore all his freaks, even homicidal, have been gratified, at the least in appearance, and if Otto has kept count of a number of persons who have pretended to fall at the discharge of his gun, he must imagine himself another Tamerlane; but how to deal with his new idea is a puzzle. A marriage is of course, not to be thought of. The king grows wilder and wilder on the subject, and has been seized with paroxisms of rage because his orders were not obeyed. It is saw that Regent Luitpoid has been re-quested to deal with the difficulty, and it is thought probable that his majesty may get a straight jacket instead of a wife. Of course such force would not be resorted to without express authority of the regent. GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS of Russia, who was seized with violent insanity last autumn, is settling down into hopeless and harmless dementia. It is reported that an examination of his affairs has effaced whatever affection the coar entertained for him. Proof is ample that he has been guilty of most enormous peculations, and that having been forgiven by the former czar, he has been equally unfaithful to the present one. It is thought that his madness may have been brought on by fear of discovery. His unfortunate mistress, or latest mistress, Madame Yonow, who was led mistress, Madame Yohow, who was led to desert her husband, an army officer the sake of becoming the paramour of the prince of the blood, is living with fer two children on a small pittance in the Crimer. The czar, it appears, can forgive his relatives almost any crime, but he cannot forgive their victims. He has strong apparance even to the presence of his father's illeritimate children, his own half-prothers, although it is said to have been brothers, although it is said to have been the final request of the late emperor that they should be cared for as members of the house of Romandif.
